

STREET

34
TH

ARTS SEPTEMBER 5, 2013 AT 5:30 AM

Philadelphia Fall Arts Preview

Start marking your calendars: autumn in Philly is flourishing with art of all kinds, from theater to sculpture, openings to closings.

By 34TH STREET MAGAZINE

Jason Rhoades, Four Roads Opening Reception at ICA September 18

(Exhibition on display until December 29)

36th & Sansom Streets (Free)

Don't think only your art-nerd friends will appreciate this show. Jason Rhoades' captivating environments, stuffed with everything from neon and legos to figurines and power tools, promise to have universal appeal. Visiting the show will score you some major cred as an art insider: before his death in 2006, Rhoades was mainly known in Europe (despite residing in LA), and this will be the first major American exhibition of his works. The Rhoades show will take over the entire ICA, with four different installations on display within the museum.